

79. (New) The method according to Claim 66, wherein the rotating members are stationary, except when they are periodically activated.

80. (New) The method according to Claim 79, wherein the rotating members are rotated one revolution at a predetermined interval to produce the alternating score or crease.